Author Kate Waters was born on September 4, 1951, in Rochester, NY. She went on to earn a B.A. from Newtown College of the Sacred Heart (Boston College) and a M.L.S. from Simmonsâ€¢ Graduate School of Library and Information Science. She grew up in a big family in which storytelling was very important. She worked as a librarian for ten years at the Boston Public Library. There she became very interested in telling stories to young people and finding out what they enjoyed reading. She moved to New York where she worked on a childrenâ€¢s magazine. While working at the magazine, she started to think about new ways to present history and traditions to children. Her books include pictures of actors depicting the stories Kate writes. In addition, her books have been praised for their content and have won many awards. Kate currently lives in New York City.

I bought this book along with Sarah Morton's Day. I read Sarah Morton's Day and felt that it was a little too long and complex for the age group I was planning on reading this to (1st grade). Perhaps reading certain "parts" to children around Thanksgiving would be best if they are young. I planned on returning this one since I did not read it to my class yet and b/c Sarah Morton's Day was a little too complex, but gave me a refund and said to keep the book anyway, so hopefully I can use it in the future!

As a teacher I use this book every November. I like that it simply tells about a typical day for a pilgrim child. It has some historical references to things like clothing and what they were called. The kids like this book year after year.

educational and engaging for my son. Lovely pictures to compliment the text.

Great for teaching about Thanksgiving.

I use this book each November in my classroom. It gives a good understanding of how things were children when the Pilgrims came to America. It also helps the students to be thankful for what they have.

wonderful for explaining Pilgrim life

Product as expected and as advertised.

This was a wonderful booklet. I bought it for my grandchildren to read so they'll be come interested and knowledgeable about the Mayflower times.
