

The book was found

I Wanna New Room

Synopsis

A hilarious companion to I Wanna Iguana. Ever since their baby sister came along, Alex has been forced to share a room with his little brother, Ethan, and it's a nightmare. Ethan always breaks stuff, snores like a walrus, and sticks crayons up his nose. No hardworking, well-behaved, practically grown-up boy like Alex should have to put up with that! Writing letters to his mom convinced her to let him get his pet iguana, so Alex puts pencil to paper again, this time determined to get his own room. Though all of his powers of persuasion can't get his dad to expand the house, he does come through with a fun alternative to give Alex some space of his own.

Book Information

Lexile Measure: AD540L (What's this?)

Hardcover: 32 pages

Publisher: G.P. Putnam's Sons Books for Young Readers (December 2, 2010)

Language: English

ISBN-10: 0399254056

ISBN-13: 978-0399254055

Product Dimensions: 8.8 x 0.4 x 10.8 inches

Shipping Weight: 8.8 ounces (View shipping rates and policies)

Average Customer Review: 4.7 out of 5 stars 48 customer reviews

Best Sellers Rank: #35,731 in Books (See Top 100 in Books) #77 in Books > Children's Books > Growing Up & Facts of Life > Family Life > New Baby #234 in Books > Children's Books > Growing Up & Facts of Life > Family Life > Siblings #1607 in Books > Children's Books > Humor

Age Range: 5 - 8 years

Grade Level: Kindergarten - 3

Customer Reviews

K-Gr 3 *œ*In this companion to I Wanna Iguana (Putnam, 2004), irrepressible Alex is back with a new entreaty *œ*his own room, puh-leez! *œ*played out in another series of letter exchanges. Now sharing a room with his younger brother in the wake of his sister's birth, Alex delivers his first written plea to Mom, who, in the depths of postpartum exhaustion, refers him to his father. Thus do Alex and his good-natured dad begin their own guy-to-guy letter exchange, with Alex detailing Ethan's various transgressions ("He sticks crayons up his nose and barks like a walrus!" œ) and his reasonable father reminding him that he was no different at the age of four. Back and forth go Alex's complaints and his father's practical rejoinders until Dad suggests that they build a tree house together, where surely Alex can find some peace and quiet. Indeed, it's too quiet! And Alex's final letter is to Ethan, inviting him to play in his new retreat. The last page shows the brothers happily ascending the tree-house ladder together. As spun out in the exchanges, the child vs. parent points of view and the sibling rivalry all ring hilariously true. Catrow's zany pencil and watercolor illustrations capture perfectly the madcap daydreams in Alex's head as well as the familiar detritus of a young boy's room. (The iguana still lives there!) A surefire kid-pleaser with a subtle, sweet lesson in peaceful coexistence.

Kathleen Finn, St. Francis Xavier School, Winooski, VT. (c) Copyright 2010. Library Journals LLC, a wholly owned subsidiary of Media Source, Inc. No redistribution permitted.

As in I Wanna Iguana (2004), this story about a child tired of sharing a room with his pesky little brother is told through letters and illustrated in energetic, cartoon-style illustrations. Alex pleads for his own room and complains about his little brother Ethan: "He sticks crayons up his nose and barks like a walrus" while a fantastical double-page image shows Ethan as a walrus in action. Finally, Dad builds Alex a tree house, but once he is alone in his new space, Alex misses all the family chaos. The slapstick, sibling anger, and crowding issues are all spot-on.

Preschool-Grade 2. --Hazel Rochman

I use this book (as well as the other two in the series) as a read-aloud to teach my combined 1st and 2nd-grade class about persuasive writing AND friendly letter writing! A double whammy! What more could you ask for? Well, if you want hilarious humor, students engaged, quality writing AND great illustrations, you will not be disappointed!

The illustrations were confusing and distracting for my first graders but they liked the story. Also, a difficult book for Bilingual students.

Karen Kaufman Orloff & David Catrow have done it again. This second book in the "I Wanna..." series is great fun. Alex is back with another request made through his hysterically funny letters. Mom, tired from dealing with his newborn sister, has referred him to Dad this time. The arrival of his sister has resulted in Alex having to share a room with his brother Ethan. Alex explains his difficulties with the arrangement and Dad decides that together they will build Alex a place of his own. (Alex eventually decides to share it with Ethan). I have laughed out loud along with the kids while reading this book. (I was happy to see the iguana from the first book in this one, but if you haven't read the first, you will still love this one on its own.) I highly recommend this funny and loving book that leaves its readers with a great feeling.

In I Wanna Iguana, Alex tries to convince his seemingly unshakable mother that he should be allowed to adopt a friend's baby iguana. Now, in the highly anticipated follow-up, I Wanna New Room, Alex longs for his own room. In a series of letters, Alex attempts to convince his parents that he shouldn't have to share a room with his baby brother, Ethan. After all, when Ethan sleeps, he sounds like the cat coughing up fur balls. Ethan also sticks crayons up his nose and barks like a walrus! All poor Alex wants is his old room back. Readers will be laughing out loud as they read Mom and Dad's replies, explaining that his new little sister, Annie needs her privacy to do girl stuff. But Alex will not be swayed and devises his own ways to handle the situation, which include taping the room, and pleading that even his friend Stinky's dog Lurch has his own room! After all, it's more than a room, it's the principle of the thing. Alex eventually pulls it off and convinces his dad that he needs his own space. Dad builds Alex a special place of his own--a brand new tree house. But, in the end, Alex realizes, who will he play ping-pong with? Every child longs for their own room, but sometimes it's just not possible. I Wanna New Room is a humorous book that can give kids a new outlook on the situation. The wonderful illustrations by David Catrow add to the flair and will have readers wondering, what will Alex want next?

My students love this. This is a great book to illustrate authors purpose or persuasive writing.

kids love it

Cute book :)

My students loved this book! The same author wrote "I Wanna Iguana," which they had read in the past. We used this as a mentor text for persuasive writing and it helped them a lot :-)

Download to continue reading...

I Wanna New Room Sweet Noshings: New Twists on Traditional Jewish Desserts (What Jew Wanna Eat) House Thinking: A Room-by-Room Look at How We Live (P.S.) Domino: The Book of Decorating: A Room-by-Room Guide to Creating a Home That Makes You Happy Bringing it Home - France : Creating the Feeling of France in Your Home Room by Room The Film Editing Room

Handbook, Third Edition: How to Manage the Near Chaos of the Cutting Room The Upstairs Room (Winner of the Newbery Honor) (The Upstairs Room Series Book 1) The Journey Back: Sequel to the Newbery Honor Book The Upstairs Room (The Upstairs Room Series 2) Junk Beautiful: Room by Room Makeovers with Junkmarket Style Too Big to Know: Rethinking Knowledge Now That the Facts Aren't the Facts, Experts Are Everywhere, and the Smartest Person in the Room Is the Room The Big Book of a Miniature House: Create and decorate a house room by room Pocket Guide to the Operating Room (Pocket Guide to Operating Room) Makes Me Wanna Holler: A Young Black Man in America Girls Just Wanna Have Mad Libs: Ultimate Box Set I Wanna Iguana I Wanna Be A Producer - How to Make a Killing on Broadway...or Get Killed The Ultimate Babysitter's Handbook: So You Wanna Make Tons of Money (Plugged In) I Wanna Take Me a Picture: Teaching Photography and Writing to Children Do Ya Wanna Be A Wrestler, Kid? I Wanna Grow Weed.: A poor man's guide to growing a medical marijuana plant.

Contact Us

DMCA

Privacy

FAQ & Help