Wanda Roderick-Bolton developed the Court and Conference Reporting program at Lansing (Michigan) Community College, where she was also a professor of Business. She taught the Court and Conference Reporting program for 16 years. She has degrees from Murray State University, Illinois State University, and Michigan State University as well as additional graduate study at the University of Illinois. She is currently owner and president of R&W Associates, a real estate investment and development company, where she oversees the daily operations and the legal and financial aspects of the business. She is listed in numerous Who's Who publications, including Who's Who of Women in Education, Men and Women of Distinction, and The International Who's Who of Intellectuals. She is an Associate Member of the National Court Reporters Association, a member of the National Business Education Association, a small-business consultant, and a Trustee for Starr Commonwealth Schools in Michigan and Ohio.

I ordered the book after all the research. Editorial notes had misleading information about audio cassettes included. No cassettes are included. What is the point of buying this book without audio. It is meaningless.
